Chic Papoose Baby Slings Make The Final Cut In Major Motion Picture "The Hangover" And Dines With Celebrity Moms At Posh Beverly Hills Dinner

(PORTLAND Ore.) Chic Papoose baby slings have once again been chosen by the trendsetters in Hollywood. Chic Papoose pouch style slings appear in a major motion picture and were chosen as a best in class product featured at an exclusive dinner in Beverly Hills.

One of the pouch style baby slings makes a brief appearance in the hilarious and highly anticipated new movie, "The Hangover", from Warner Brothers, in theatres June 5. The CELESTE style, chosen for its edgy yet beautiful Asian inspired tattoo design, is featured as a prop in the apartment of Heather Graham's character, Jade.

Chic Papoose slings were presented at an exclusive dinner event in Beverly Hills May 27. Celebrity mommy and actress Ali Landry joined celebrity nursery designer and baby lifestyle expert Jayneoni Moore to highlight the best baby and toddler products in the industry.

The dinner catered to 150 new moms and moms-to-be from the LA area gifting each mom with one of the featured products at the end of the dinner. Celebrity mommies and moms-to-be in attendance included Ali Landry, Constance Marie, Nicole Sullivan, Molly Ringwald, Sarah Shahi, Tisha Campbell Martin, Jennifer Freeman and Anne Heche.

Entertainment Tonight and OK Magazine covered the dinner.

Owned by Holly Nelson, a Portland Oregon work-from-home mom, Chic Papoose has garnered international attention for its fashionable and functional baby slings. Chic Papoose slings are made using the highest quality materials featuring stylish prints and solids that appeal to a wide array of moms and dads.
